ITALIAN LINE STANDS FIRM ON PIAVE RIVER AND CRITICAL TRENTINO FRONT; ADVANCE OF INVADERS ON VENICE STOPPED, IS BELIEF

Italy Is Able to Hold Back the Hordes of the Central Powers While She Continues to Carry on Her Straightening Out Process; Only Place Where Foe Has Been Able to Make Headway Is in the Hill Region South of Fonzaso and Feltre, Where Rome Concedes the Retirement of Advanced Posts to Prepared Positions, but This Is Not Regarded as a Serious Matter.

(By Associated Press.)

Indications in today's official news from the Italian front are that the Italian line is still holding on the Piave and on the critical Trentino front, while the straightening out process is being continued along the salient between the upper Piave and the Sugana valley on the edge of the Trentino district.

Berlin's statement reports no fighting along the lower Piave, where the Italian reports have shown repeated attempts by the Austro-German forces to pierce the river line and compel its abandonment and the consequent loss of Venice by the Italians. It has been pointed out that every day this line is held counts heavily in Italy's favor, as the Anglo-French contingent in Italy soon will be on the fighting line to support the Italian army.

The Rome war office statement today throws a still more favorable light on the situation from the entire viewpoint. The frustration of new attempts by the invaders to cross the Piave is reported, while the comparatively small parties which previously had secured a footing on the west side of the river have been held fast virtually in their tracks.

Continuation of the German advance is announced in the hill region south of Fonzaso and Feltre, where Rome concedes the retirement of advanced posts to prepared positions. It is in this section that the Italian line forms an awkward salient in its east and west extension from the Piave and there have been indications for several days that the Italians were drawing out of it.

Berlin makes no claim to further advances in the Trentino where the Italians are holding the hill region safely so far against the threat of the drive aimed at the Venetian plain to outflank the Piave line.
